

WOMEN TO TRY NEW PARTIES

Platform Will Be Submitted
To Conventions of Labor and '48."

PROMISED HEARING

National League Announces
Plan for Getting Best Results in Autumn.

The national conventions of the Committee of Forty-eight and the Labor party will be afforded opportunity to make strong bids for the woman vote in the Fall elections.

The National League of Women Voters announced last night that the "woman's platform," which was presented to the Republicans at Chicago and the Democrats at San Francisco, also will be urged before the Committee of Forty-eight and the Labor party conventions in Chicago during the coming week. Officials of the two conventions, it is stated, have given assurances that the women's platform will be accorded due consideration.

Miss Elizabeth J. Hauser, of Warren, Ohio, regional director of the league for Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Kentucky, Wisconsin and West Virginia, will have charge of the hearings.

Women Voters Nonpartisan.
The National League of Women Voters is "the daughter" of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, and is nonpartisan. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, former president of the latter organization, is the honorary chairman of the league, and Mrs. Maud Wood Park is national chairman. The league has a membership of 2,500,000.

The league's legislative program—declares for principle for legislation dealing with child welfare, education, home and high prices, women in gainful occupations, public health and morals, and independent citizenship for married women. In presenting this platform, the league officials will say, in effect:

"Here we are and here is what we want. What will you do to see that we and our friends decide to stay?"

Disappointment was expressed by the league officials because of the Republican convention's "serious oversight in turning down the plank relating to infancy and maternity."

"G. O. P. Oversight Serious."
"We do feel that the Republican party has committed a serious oversight and one that we regret in turning down the plank which makes the strongest and most general appeal to the women of the country—that relating to infancy and maternity care," said Miss Park.

She declared that the women of the country are eagerly watching every move of the political parties for assurances of support in the things they, as women, know to be fundamental to good government.

The first national convention of the league to be an annual affair will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, next spring, it is announced. The first convocation will in a way be especially significant, it is said at headquarters. There will be a general summing up of accomplishments."

AMERICAN SINGERS TO STAR IN PARIS

American composers and American performers will be stars of the opera season next winter in Paris, France.

Among the attractions will be "Dame Libellule," by the American composer, Fairchild, and "Le Capitaine Corcoran," by the American composer, Thomas. The latter will bring his company to the Opera Comique and Parisians will hear Mary Garden, Rosa Raisa, Caroline White and other famous American songbirds.

Artist Snipes a Few Big Democrats

Starts $5,000 Suit Because Saturday Bath Is Denied

Because he was forced to disrobe with his daily ablution and "humiliated in mind and body" by being denied the privilege of taking a bath, Alexander B. Moore, a negro waiter at a fashionable club at Sacramento, Cal., appeared in the Superior Court recently and asked $5,000 damages from T. Takimoto, proprietor of a Japanese bath house.

Moore, who is a former service man, said that when he entered the bath house recently to take his customary morning shower and bath he was confronted by a sign reading "no baths for colored men on Saturday."

Being in need of bodily cleansing on Saturday as well as other days of the week, Moore testified that he was confronted by a sign reading "no baths for colored men on Saturday."

FRENCH TO WELCOME
K. OF C. PILGRIMAGE
Chicago, July 4.—Greetings from France were received by the Knights of Columbus national education convention at its second day's session here today. The message was a cable from Dr. Marcel Knecht, French high commissioner to the United States, who is now in Paris. He stated that Premier Millerand had taken personal direction of the French arrangements for the reception of the forthcoming Knights of Columbus pilgrimage to France for the presentation of the statue of La Fayette.

CAN'T SEE WINNER FROM WASHINGTON
Here is what the only two Democratic Senators who could be located here yesterday think of the situation at San Francisco:

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, of Nebraska: "I expected when I woke up this morning to find McAdoo had been nominated. It would be impossible to predict what the convention will do now."

Senator Henry M. Ashurst, of Arizona: "San Francisco is a very pleasant city. The delegates are out there having a good time and are not going to nominate anyone until the fifth ballot. Who will it be? Ask me something hard."

DEMOCRATIC SESSION PUZZLE TO LONDON

(Washington Herald-Cross-Atlantic Service—Special Cable Dispatch.)
London, July 4.—Commenting editorially on the Democratic national convention at San Francisco the Manchester Guardian says:

"It is never easy for the British public to unravel the meaning of an American party convention, and certainly the present convention is no exception to this rule. There are two things to note, however: First, the strength of the Wilson following and the great skill it is using; and second, the continued power of Bryan despite his three disastrous campaigns for the Presidency."

Their Dad Possible Presidential Choice

Curiosity Conquers.
The detectives are making a lot of the lingerie found in Elwell's home. I can clear that mystery. Last summer Mr. Elwell handed me a box and said: "Put that away—don't open it."

"Well, that aroused my curiosity. I opened the box. It contained the pink kimono. The detectives are now talking about it. It was bought at—on Fifth avenue. No woman left that there. Mr. Elwell had bought it for the use of his visitors."

"How do I know? Well, you see, I wasn't supposed to be living in the house, but when we returned from Palm Beach I couldn't get an apartment in New York. Therefore, without Mr. Elwell's knowledge, I had a room in the top of the house and saw everything that was going on. Nobody ever knew that I was there."

"I have seen a woman come night after night."

"One morning I saw Mrs. Kane in the pink kimono."

Baltimore Girl Mentioned.
A young woman from Baltimore also wore the pink kimono.

"One night, after Mr. Elwell had been to the races at Hays de Grace he returned with this young Baltimore woman and another woman. They weren't the usual class of women Mr. Elwell went with. They stayed at his house two days."

Love Triangle Tale Unfolded By Elwell's Irish Servant Who "Pitied" Jealous Husbands

woman from Baltimore who, she said, also wore the pink kimono.

This pink kimono was not the first piece of kind that Mr. Elwell had bought for use of his women visitors, according to Mrs. Kane. It had a predecessor—one of blue silk with white roses.

"Mr. Elwell never had a pistol," said Mrs. Kane, at another juncture of the interview. "The only weapon he ever had was a blackjack, in his Palm Beach home. My husband can verify that."

Mrs. Kane's husband, whom I interviewed later, corroborated this statement.

Afraid of Husbands.
"Mr. Elwell was afraid of many husbands," Mrs. Kane declared. "Incidentally, she told of how she lived secretly in a room in the top of the Elwell home and thus was witness to the many 'parties' and midnight revelings. Here is Mrs. Kane's own story."

"One day I had a row with Mr. Elwell in the very room in which he was found shot. Elwell was very offensive to me. I became quite ruffled, but I went to continue, then I said:

"You forget all I did for you, Mr. Elwell, but I'm going to round you up."

"He said: 'What do you mean?' I said: 'I'll tell Madame X's husband about the goings-on here.'"

Mrs. Kane then mentioned the name of one of Elwell's most intimate women friends who figures prominently in the District Attorney's investigation of the case.

Pleads for Silence.
"Mr. Elwell's attitude immediately changed. He said: 'For God's sake, don't do that. Whatever passed us just go almost be forgotten by me.'"

He appealed to me not to do it. I immediately said I would not because we were good friends again.

"Mr. Elwell was afraid of Madame X's husband, who was a very powerful man. He frequently mentioned in connection with the case."

Husband Seeks Wife.
"He wore military trousers. He had just returned from France. He was very much excited. He said: 'I have come to find my wife.'"

"He said another man had told him Elwell had a good time. He told me the story. He broke into a foreign tongue with a sprinkling of English."

"He said his wife was a movie actress."

"Mr. Elwell was in bed at the time. I called up the dumb waiter. There's a man here looking for his wife."

"Mr. Elwell called down: 'I know nothing about her. Put him out.'"

"I told 'Monsieur Z' to go out, and as I had a lot of sympathy for him I told him to watch Mr. Elwell's automobile, which was waiting at the door."

Pursues Elwell.
"Mr. Elwell called down some time later and inquired if the man had gone. He told me that if the man called again I should tell him he, Mr. Elwell, had gone out through the back door."

"When Mr. Elwell went out to get into his machine, 'Monsieur Z' rushed up the street. Mr. Elwell dashed into his automobile. I asked 'Monsieur Z' when Mr. Elwell had disappeared what had happened. 'Monsieur Z' was in a great rage. He replied that as Mr. Elwell had got into his machine he had called out: 'Your wife has gone on with a touring car.'"

"I never knew what became of 'Monsieur Z' after that. I do not know his name."

"The detectives are making a lot of the lingerie found in Elwell's home. I can clear that mystery. Last summer Mr. Elwell handed me a box and said: 'Put that away—don't open it.'"

"Well, that aroused my curiosity. I opened the box. It contained the pink kimono. The detectives are now talking about it. It was bought at—on Fifth avenue. No woman left that there. Mr. Elwell had bought it for the use of his visitors."

Deschanel Afraid He'll Go Broke if Pay Isn't Raised

Like his predecessor Poincaré, President Deschanel of France is beginning to feel the pinch of the H. C. of L. In fact, if the government doesn't grant him a bonus soon he says he'll go broke.

President Poincaré's biggest item of expenditure was entertainment, for which he was allowed 300,000 francs and which he spent nearly 1,000,000 francs per annum. Before he left the Elysee Poincaré gave Deschanel the inside dope on the presidential hard-luck story, and as a consequence Deschanel yielded to his already severe prohibitions and tendencies and absolutely forbade a drop of liquor except light wines to be brought into the mansion.

He even put steel padlocks on the doors leading to the Elysee cellars, most celebrated in Europe.

But it didn't work. Despite the rigorously curtailed menus and the abstinence of the presidential household, President Deschanel found himself sliding nearer and nearer to the abyss of "financial embarrassment." Unlike other national executives, the president of France is not free of taxes, and as these have recently been augmented he now has to pay the neat little sum of 200,000 francs, or one-sixth of his total income, salary and expenses, to the French exchequer.

For since he left the Elysee, Poincaré is fast replacing his depleted bank account. As chairman of the reparations commission he draws 200,000 francs a year. His law practice, it is estimated, brings him in a cool half million. Besides this income as an author and writer for the public press nets him enough to bring the total up to the million mark.

Mrs. McAdoo "Votes" No
To His Nomination
New York, July 4.—Whether the Democratic party in convention assembled in San Francisco finds it its duty to nominate William Gibbs McAdoo for the presidency, there is one person vitally interested in the future of the eminent lawyer who votes "no" on the proposition without hesitation.

It is Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo. She is frank to say she prefers to be Mrs. W. G. McAdoo without the pomp and panoply of the Presidency and having been the daughter of a President, she is in a position to say.

If McAdoo should be nominated and then elected President of the United States Mrs. McAdoo will be the first woman in history to be both the daughter and wife of a President.

Charges Host Robbed Him.
Pete Vesotti, of Grand Rapids, Mich., invited Boneslaw Oklahoma to take a bath at his Turkish bathhouse. Then, says Boneslaw, he searched my pockets and took $150. B. O. now wants the cops to make P. V. pay up.

Welcomes Harding
At Home in Marion

At Washington, Pa., the Senator and Mrs. Harding, a cousin of Senator Harding, the Senator's maternal ancestor came from this section of Pennsylvania. It was commented by the Senator that James G. Blaine was born in Washington, Pa., and a few miles distant near Brownsville, Pa., are the birthplaces of Senators Cummings, Lowell and P. C. Knox, of Pennsylvania.

Before his arrival at Wheeling, W. Va., Senator Harding's automobile was halted by friends and he was warmly greeted. There was an exchange of Wheeling stories, a smoke of which the Senator is fond. Later at the McClure hotel, where the Senator stopped for a short rest, there was an informal reception.

A la pressed herself, with the statement: "I am from Pennsylvania and do not know whether I will be able to vote for you this fall."

Senator Harding replied: "I think you will, though. Hershey manager for Senator Sutherland, of West Virginia, in the latter's campaign for nomination as President and William T. Terry making introductions, the Senator met many people. George S. Houston, who is active in the work of building the American Legion monument at St. Louis, secured from Senator Harding a conditional promise to attend the cornerstone laying of the monument July 25.

President Spends Part of Sunday Studying San Francisco Situation.

President Wilson spent part of yesterday morning studying the results of the balloting in the Democratic convention at San Francisco.

The President displayed keen interest in the tables of figures showing the gains and losses of the candidates. At times he smiled as he read.

The President arose early. Most of Saturday night's news of the convention still was news to the President yesterday since he had retired at 9:30 o'clock.

Secretary Tumulty and other White House officials, however, remained in their offices until long after midnight.

HARDING "IN FINE SHAPE" REACHES ZANESVILLE, O.

Zanesville, Ohio, July 4.—Senator Harding and party reached here at 8:30 o'clock tonight. The automobile ride of 204 miles from Cumberland, Md., was covered in eleven hours. The trip was broken by a two-hour rest at Washington, Pa., and a half-hour stop in Wheeling, W. Va.

The Senator will rest here tonight. He will leave at 8:30 tomorrow morning for his home in Marion and will continue the trip to his final stop of his trip from Washington.

Tonight Senator Harding is in fine shape. The trip has rested him greatly. He is full of vigor and ready for the landshaking and peddling tomorrow. These are to be features of his return to Marion as the Republican Presidential nominee.

Mrs. Harding stated frankly she would be glad to reach her home where she could rest for a while from the strenuous day preceding the Chicago convention and the still more burdensome days she has passed in preparing for the return to Marion and the closing of the Washington residence.

Senator Harding also recognized today by many people the automobile route. His photograph filled many windows in the cities and small towns in Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio, all of which he touched on the drive today, and people were warned of his coming. He received occasional cheers and salutes as he drove along and held small receptions when he stopped at Washington, Pa., and Wheeling, W. Va., and Zanesville, Ohio.
